FOREWORD

Careers guidance for young people has never been more important. With nearly one million young people unemployed in the UK and businesses vocal about the skills gap they face when recruiting at entry level. To help schools and young people access the support and information they need to improve their skills, the third annual National Careers Week (NCW) took place from 4 to the 8 March 2013, organised by Careersinfo in partnership with Barclays and supported by the National Apprenticeship Service and The Department for Work and Pensions.

NCW is a UK-wide celebration of careers information, advice and guidance, developed to encourage education providers to bring together students, local employers and advisers to provide careers activities. It aims to inspire schools, academies and colleges to offer careers advice and guidance, highlighting the free resources and support available, while at the same time, inspiring employers to connect with young people.

During the week over 1,500 schools, academies and colleges signed up to provide more than 1.1 million students the support they need to make informed choices about their first step on the career ladder. It is estimated that 25,000 free NCW resources were downloaded during the week including videos, case studies and information about the world of work. You can see the full infographic to the left of this text.

Activities during the week in participating schools included special guest speakers, day trips out to local employers, 'build-a-career' workshops, CV writing exercises, and even fashion shows demonstrating 'what and what not to wear at job interviews'. Malet Lambert School in Hull was one of the most active during National Careers Week 2013 with over 30 careers activities for students to participate in across a variety of subjects. Stephen Logan is the Head of Careers at Malet Lambert and a big supporter of NCW. Stephen suggested that the activities schools provide during NCW could help them meet their Ofsted requirements to provide impartial, independent and external careers guidance for their students, and says that preparing young people for employment is vital in schools. We are so happy with Malet Lambert's involvement this year.

We thoroughly hope you enjoy this report.

ABOUT MALET LAMBERT SCHOOL

Malet Lambert is a co-educational comprehensive community school for children aged 11-16. Most of our 1400+ students live in the central area of East Hull. We have a dedicated team of both teaching and support staff of approximately 160 people. The majority of our pupils continue their education when they leave us. The school has one of the best examination records in the area, with the latest OFSTED Report (April 2012) noting that:

"The curriculum has some innovative features designed to meet the needs of all students and to provide for a range of pathways, including some vocational courses."

ENSURING THE BEST STANDARD

At Malet Lambert School, we are committed to employability and enterprise education for all students as part of our contemporary aspirations, providing opportunities for innovation, adaptability, developing skills and a global career ambition. Here are some of the accreditations we have received for our work.

INTRODUCTION

Dear friends,

At Malet Lambert School, we aim to help all students fulfil their potential and experience success through an educational environment, which responds to individual need and stimulates and challenges each and every student. The processes of informing, advising and guiding students are accorded a high priority within our school, and are seen as crucial in preparing students to make decisions regarding the opportunities and challenges of adult and working life.

National Careers Week 2013 was an important part of the school's guidance programme. We were delighted to see so many of our business and educational partners give up their time to encourage our pupils to give thought to their futures. The variety of activities organised throughout the week was a pleasure to see! Year 7 pupils learning skills within the construction industry, year 8 pupils 'fixing up their futures' at Hull City Hall, year 9 understanding the influence of the digital world on society, year 10 looking at routes into social work, nursing and childcare and year 11 considering opportunities in further and higher education were just some of the highlights of the week.

With over 1200 pupils directly involved in activities during National Careers Week, the impact of the week was significant. Together with all the regular careers, employability, enterprise activities offered throughout the school year, it is clear that Malet Lambert School cares about the futures of our young people.

National Careers Week 2014 promises to be even bigger and better and we are already receiving confirmation from our many partners offering their support yet again. Thank you to everyone involved in making this year's event such a success.

SPEAKER PROFILES

Action Jackson The Fix Up Team

Action Jackson is an acclaimed speaker and YouTube celebrity in his own right, who has worked with a vast range of people, from students, management teams of major corporations and individuals in different walks of life. He is passionate about helping students to live their dreams and go that extra mile. The Fix Up Team, of which he is a part, are a team of passionate people focused on motivating students, teachers and parents, up and down the country, to “Make It Happen” and “Live Your Dreams”.

Jon Moss Hull Digital

Jon Moss runs theappleofmyi and helps businesses, individuals and brands provide an engaging and useful experience online. Previously, he worked for a FTSE 100 company holding various senior positions. He launched their new brand in the UK and was a member of the global web development team. He founded Hull Digital in 2009, Kingston upon Hull's technology community, which has grown rapidly and is the founder of HDLive. He speaks regularly as a technology commentator on BBC and independent radio, and at events across the country about online marketing.

Ross, Greg + James Engaging Education

Engaging Education is an award winning Social Enterprise creating and delivering tailored educational products, projects, workshops, design and media to educate inspire and unite young people. They have completed projects with high profile clients including Middlesbrough Football Club In The Community, Hull City Council, Wakefield Metropolitan District Council and many schools/academies across England. With a dedicated team of six young entrepreneurs aged just twenty two years old, they are unique, they understand how to enthuse young people and place the community at the centre of whatever they do.

SPEAKER PROFILES

Andy Barber The HEY Smile Foundation

HEY Smile Foundation was founded in September 2008 by Jim Dick, former Global President of Smith & Nephew. He funded 6 months running costs to allow The Smile Foundation the chance to build momentum and start to have an impact in our community. We were determined to do things differently, to break the mould and ensure smaller local charities in our area gained a greater voice and foundation for the future providing each project with the appropriate tools to deliver their work and grow for the future, as well as providing vital funding.

Jacqui Bruce Wilberforce College

Jacqui teaches Level 2 and Level 3 BTEC Health & Social Care and Child Studies at Wilberforce College and has previously taught A Level Psychology and Sociology. She emphasised the need for students to gain experience working with people including charity or voluntary work prior to applying for university courses. Working with secondary schools, Jacqui goes out to young people across Hull to outline current requirements to enter training in teaching, nursing, midwifery and social work.

Steven Dam Sewell Group

Stephen joined Sewell Group's project and construction team in 2010 and his responsibilities were to support the development of new construction projects prior to them starting on site. Stephen has also been intrinsic in the development of the Employability Charter. In addition to delivering his day-to-day tasks, Stephen's idea to develop the Sewell Skills Academy became a "wow project" for the group. His vision became a reality this year and so far more than 600 young people have benefitted from the facility.

Mike Cargill HETA Engineering

Mike has over 25 years experience in engineering and teaching and now works to promote the importance of cross curricular STEM thinking through training, activity delivery and resource development. Having graduated in 1986 with a BSc Degree in Civil Engineering from Oxford Brookes University, Mike then spent 10 years as a Civil Engineer. In 1996, he achieved his PGCE from Exeter University and embarked on 10 years teaching D&T in the Isle of Wight. In 2004, Mike's journey brought him to East Yorkshire as Assistant Head of South Hunsley School before joining HETA in 2009.

Sam Whitaker Esteem Consortium

Sam Whitaker is the Chief Executive of construction partnership, Hull Esteem. Esteem is the local authority partner tasked with delivering the Hull Building Schools for the Future programme, a once in a generation regeneration programme affecting all secondary and special needs schools across the City. Whilst the focus of Esteem is the delivery of an impressive estate of education facilities, they are also keen to ensure a meaningful legacy; improving the skills and readiness to work of young people in our area.

Phil Benson Xing Education

Phil Benson is an entrepreneur who is passionate about business and promoting enterprise in schools. Phil started the business over 6 years ago and has gone on to run a high street healthy food concept business in York, win a contract selling drinks at racecourses across the North, catering/events for many corporate companies including HSBC, BMW and Asda and providing enterprise workshops in schools. Xing currently have also developed pupil run smoothie bars in schools across the country. Phil is a great example of how experiences can become business ideas, and how drive can become success.

Amy Blenkiron The University of Hull

Amy Blenkiron is the Pre-Entry Careers Advisor at The University of Hull. Since opening its doors back in 1928, the University of Hull has been committed to providing students with first-class facilities and an ideal environment in which to live and learn. The University offers over 2000 courses a year, from the very latest disciplines to well-established traditional subjects and has an impressive list of student success stories including Jeremy Darroch, Chief Executive of BSkyB, Muhtar Kent, CEO of The Coca-Cola Company, Robert Elstone, CEO of Everton FC.

ABOUT EMPLOYABILITY CHARTER

Written by The Hull Employability Charter Team

The Hull Employability Charter was brought about as a direct result of the Hull Building Schools for the Future Programme and the desire from Hull City Council and those behind the programme to ensure a legacy in skills and training was left. Whilst a lot of good work is already done on the subject of employability, the City's future workforce was lacking in many of the key skills that employers look for when recruiting. It was with this in mind that the group behind the Hull Employability Charter began to look to businesses to get involved, after all, they are the future employers of the City's young people.

Putting it simply, the Hull Employability Charter is nothing more than a commitment. Businesses are asked to sign up to the Charter in order to recognise the work that is being done alongside education providers to embed employability skills. Many companies already work with schools, colleges and universities delivering tried and tested programmes but we firmly believe that there is an opportunity for every business to get involved.

Malet Lambert School is our education partner, being instrumental in our establishment and working with businesses on the pilot of the Charter. With the work they have done with us on this, it is easy to see why they lead the way in this area with things like National Careers Week and are embedding employability skills into everything they do.

About Ann Newlove

Ann Newlove is Business Manager for Esteem, the organisation tasked with delivering Hull's Building Schools for the Future programme. Whilst many of the team focus on the construction side of things, Ann works to ensure that a legacy is left way beyond the bricks and mortar of the build programme. She's passionate about giving young people the skills they need to excel. As one of the day to day leads of the Hull Employability Charter, Ann was responsible for Hull's National Careers Week culmination event, Fix Up Your Future and spent the beginning of the week at Malet Lambert School to report on behalf of the Charter.

MONDAY'S PHOTOS

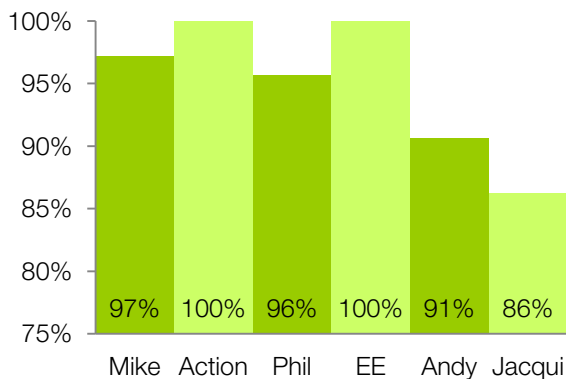

MONDAY'S EVENTS

In true style to hit off the start of a momentous week, Monday saw 6 speakers from all industries come to Malet Lambert to talk to students about employability, enterprise and entrepreneurship. Every year group had the chance to see one of the speakers on this day including Action Jackson, Engaging Education, Andy Barber, Jacqui Bruce, Mike Cargill, Sam Whitaker and Phil Benson. (See page 8.)

Engaging Education delivered a session on Monday morning, spanning 3 lessons, to test every enterprising skill possible. The task, focused around the appropriate use of literacy, helped students to identify their future career path and write about it in a concise and appropriate way.

The team at Engaging Education have taken away all the documents that were produced by the young people and turned it into a publication about Malet Lambert students, careers and aspirations. It is fantastic to see the work done by our students in Careers Week 2013 will be distributed across the country and shown as a great example.

Not everything could be brought to Malet though. We sent a group of students down to Sewell Skills Academy, a new £500,000 facility helps to raise the employability awareness of young people in the region, whilst giving a taster of the world of work through practical learning experiences. You can see the photos on the next page...

Quick Stats

As part of the evaluation of each speaker, event and the week as a whole, we asked our students if they enjoyed their session, and if they felt they learnt something.

See the student satisfaction rate in the chart on the right.

My lasting impression of #NCW2013 will be the launch event with @maletlambert in #Hull hosted by @Stephen_Logan - real careers in action

MONDAY'S PHOTOS

YEAR 7 STUDENT PHOTOS
FROM SEWELL SKILLS ACADEMY

30 year 7 students attended Sewell Skills Academy on Monday to experience the world of construction hands-on and those vital employability skills in action. Sewell Skills Academy is a one of a kind facility that raises the employability awareness of children and young people whilst providing a taster of the construction industry. A Year 7 student took these pictures above and passed them on to Stephen Logan to capture and share his experiences!

TUESDAY'S EVENTS

Tuesday saw the return of Action Jackson in a full day special event. 4 sessions for years 7-10 focused on motivation, inspiration and being the best at whatever you do. Action Jackson got students up on their feet and dragged them right out of their comfort zones to boost their confidence and teach them what it takes to put yourself ahead of the competition.

Action Jackson said; "The move towards "Independent Learning" requires a different level of motivation and skill and this program takes the students through the mental transition and what is required for them to perform at their peak. The FIXUP culture is one of fun, creativity, and inspiration conveyed with a high level of integrity."

Whilst some intense motivation was taking place in the hall, our other speakers, Jon Moss, Amy Blenkiron and Daniel Gray (see page 8) spoke about entrepreneurship, higher education and interview techniques. Jon inspired 30 year 9 pupils about the careers of tomorrow and how the jobs our year 9 pupils will be doing in 20 years time, may not exist right now... A scary thought. Jon said: "It's terrific to hear about their plans for life and how some are already thinking of ideas and plans for their future."

'Everyone is gifted at something, it's just a case of realising it what it is!'

Elyul - Year 7

"It's not all about earning lots in the future. I want a job I enjoy doing"

Chloe - Year 8

"If I believe I can do something, I am more likely to achieve it."

Callum - Year 10

"How I behave and work now will have an effect on my future."

Adam - Year 9

"Success is not by magic, it's by hard work!"

Alice - Year 10

WEDNESDAY'S EVENTS

Wednesday took a different focus as no speakers came in and no students left the school. The Hall saw 16 providers come to Malet Lambert with information, advice and guidance for every pupil in the school.

Year 9 and 10 were taken to the careers fair by tutors, but everyone had the chance to come down and pick up something up. The careers fair was a huge success, with most of our guests sending staff to bring more brochures and information packs! Safe to say our students are clued up now.

@WilberforceSFC just cleared 200 pens and 100 prospectuses in the first 10 minutes! Our students love this! #NCWML

The Careers Fair included visits from this list of local providers:

Colleges/Universities

- Bishop Burton College
- Wilberforce College
- Wyke College
- Hull College
- Hull University

Training Providers

- Alcrest Academy
- Chamber Training
- Hull Training
- HETA
- HYA Training
- McArthur Dean
- North Humberside Motor Trades Group
- Prospect Training

Employers

- Royal Navy
- PCSOs (Community Support Officers)

Starting a Business

- Hull Youth Enterprise
- Let's Talk Business Humber

There was something for everyone at the careers fair; a real opportunity to learn what is out there and what it can lead to.

"The Careers Fair gave me information about where I can move onto after I leave school next year. I now know exactly what I need to achieve in my GCSEs"

Lauren - Year 10

THURSDAY'S EVENTS

Year 10 students got the chance to go behind the scenes at the local Cineworld cinema. Media teacher, Steve Harrison said; "Their manners, their attitude, their response to the staff who guided us and their enthusiasm and focus were exemplary. Uniform, turning phones off and appreciation to the staff were wonderful. A credit to themselves and Malet Lambert."

"I hope to work closely with Malet Lambert school and increase the partnership so that we will both benefit from the projects that we do. Cinema has a great entertainment value and also has fantastic career opportunities for those who are interested in working within a fast growing and successful industry."

Gary Cotton, Cineworld Hull

Amy Blenkiron from University of Hull talking to students about the what, whys and hows of FE #NCWML @CareersWeek

Back at school, students from all years saw talks from Amy Blenkiron, Stephen Dam, Carole Forth and Jacqui Bruce. (See page 8.) Activities at the school spanned employability, personal goals, and higher education, as well as some subject specific careers guidance for health and social and public services students in year 10.

5 groups in year 7 saw Amy make her mark and learn the reasons to go and not to go to university. It was amazing to see so many year 7 students with a real idea of what they wanted to do in the future and knowing if university is right for them.

FRIDAY'S EVENTS

The week was brought to a spectacular close with an event, organised by Esteem, Humber Education Business Partnership and The Employability Charter, "Fix Up Your Future". School children, both primary and secondary, came together to see Action Jackson (for our students, the second time!) and get some real motivation for their future careers.

A fun filled day gave Malet students the chance to hear local business people speak about their field of work and how progression into jobs is not always as easy as it seems. Speakers included Sam Whitaker, Chief Exec. of Esteem, Kate Carroll, Marketing Manager at SPS Group and Hedley Aylott, CEO of Summit Media, broken up with in your face careers motivation from Action Jackson and the Fix-Up Team (even a little dancing to Thriller and Gangnam Style!)

Given our plans to become the UK's Energy Estuary, we also gave 20, year 9 students the opportunity during National Careers Week to get involved in an engaging, hands-on wind turbine design, build and operate activity with HETA and The Employability Charter at The Freedom Centre. With remote data capture feeding power into a virtual Supergrid, this session really engaged students and helped to highlight local emerging employment opportunities.

FRIDAY'S PHOTOS

IMPACT

Pretty pictures and fancy write ups are a great way of showing just what went on during Careers Week 2013, but what did the young people involved actually think?

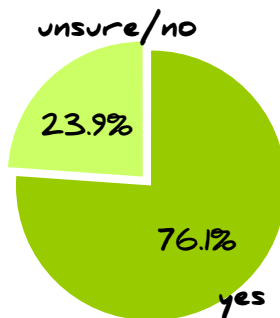

The most important part of Careers Week at Malet Lambert, is the impact it has on each and every student that took part. Below are some graphs, comments and other proof of just how much Careers Week 2013 has influenced Malet Lambert students.

"Thank you, come again."

Careers Week is of course a huge part of careers education to young people outside of the curriculum, but it is not the bigger picture; young people must get the opportunities to take part in events like this all school year.

We asked our students if they would like to attend more careers and enterprise related activities throughout their time at Malet Lambert School.

76% of students said yes.

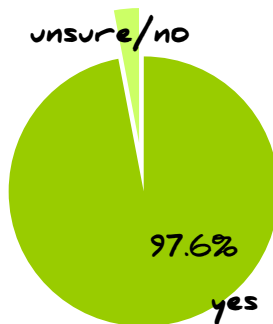

"Mr Motivator."

How can you not love Action Jackson? The man could motivate a brick to become an athlete. Every student engaged in his performance, even students that are usually less confident than others.

We asked our students if they enjoyed Action Jackson's presentation.

100% of students said yes. 97% of those students also said that they would benefit from seeing him again.

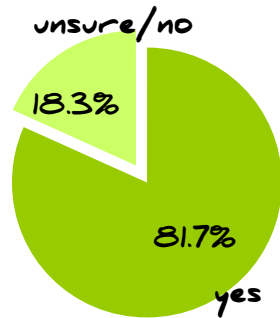

IMPACT - CHARTS

"When I grow up..."

Ultimately, Careers Week is all about the future. It is important that every young person has some kind of aim or goal to work towards, even if it isn't a job or a degree course!

We asked our students if their session helped them to think more about their future.

82% of students said yes.

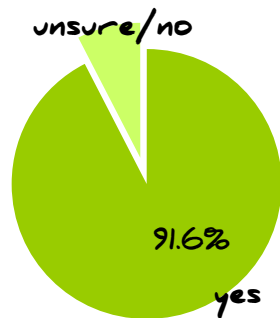

"The Real World."

At Malet Lambert, we are committed to equipping every young person with a necessary set of skills for the workplace. They came along to careers week, but we wanted to know...

We asked our students if they think it is important to learn about the world of work at school.

92% of students said yes.

IMPACT - COMMENTS

Pupil Comments

"Some of the advice about how to stand out from others when applying for jobs was really useful"

Emily - Year 10

"I think there has been lots of interesting things happening around school during careers week"

Katie - Year 8

IMPACT - COMMENTS

"National Careers Week 2013 at Malet Lambert School has been an outstanding success. We set out to achieve a good balance of sessions to motivate and enthuse our pupils as well as information sessions about future careers and opportunities.

"Pupil feedback suggests we achieved this. I was particularly impressed by the number of staff who wanted to participate in their curriculum areas. A standard has been set in the school this year and I believe NCW 2014 will be even bigger and better!"

Oliver Wilson

Lee Creamer
Enterprise Apprentice

Pupil Comments

"Careers Week has made me start thinking about the jobs I would love to do."

Jake - Year 9

"Careers Week has had a good mixture of information sessions about jobs and colleges as well as making us ambitious for the future."

Nathan - Year 10

"Careers Week was different to other weeks at school. It made me think a lot more about my future. I'm already looking forward to next year's Careers Week as I'll want more information about colleges and apprenticeships"

Vicki - Year 9

"Careers Week has had a good mixture of information sessions about jobs and colleges as well as making us ambitious for the future."

Nathan - Year 10

"I now know what "employability skills" are. If I am good at communicating, working in a team and have good leadership skills, employers are more likely to give me a job. It's not all about qualifications."

Jake - Year 7

"Our team worked very well together on all the tasks, I felt my confidence grew as the day went on."

Holly - Year 8

"I learned so much from doing the tasks today, I wish every school day could be like this!"

Harrison - Year 8

IMPACT - NATIONAL RECOGNITION

At the beginning of the week, Malet Lambert achieved national recognition when the national careers week team came to Hull to kick off Careers Week 2013 with the video “NCW 2013 KICKS OFF IN HULL”.

Careersbox, a free online library of careers related film, news and information, recorded Action Jackson, Stephen Logan, Head of Careers, and some of our enterprising students talk about their experiences of Careers Week at Malet Lambert and why they think it is important for young people to experience the world of work at school. The video was posted across the internet, earning hundreds of views.

You can see the video at:

www.nationalcareersweek.com/ncwkicksoff/cdw6

Nick Newman, Creative Director at Careers Box, not only led the team into Malet Lambert, recorded and edited the superb video, but then continued his support from Twitter (you can see some of his tweets on the next page). Nick, from all of us at Malet Lambert School, for everything you have done for us during Careers Week, we say...

THANK YOU.

TWITTER

The power of social media was shown this week with Malet Lambert's Careers Week activities going viral across Twitter. Hundreds of tweets from businesspeople, parents and students mentioned @maletlambert, @careersweek, #NCWML and #NCW2013, and other schools even congratulated Malet on hosting a fantastic Careers Week for our students.

Here are some of those tweets.

Thank you do much @maletlambert for my #NCW2013 Certificate from the students!! Absolutely chuffed at your thoughtfulness #win

You know teachers are doing something right when some of their students aspire to go into teaching. @maletlambert

Visiting Malet Lambert today for a Year 9, 10 and 11 Careers Fair! Thank you Malet Lambert for your hospitality!

1,200 students in just 1 school took part in #NCW2013 last week - sessions all week - that must be a UK record for #careers ? @maletlambert

@maletlambert @actionjackson @careersweek my daughter attended last year in year 11 and absolutely loved this session

You might have noticed from the tweets, we're @maletlambert today to see what they are doing for #NCW2013 Question is, what are you doing?

@Stephen_Logan would like to congratulate you on your fantastic careers week, i've been looking at the tweets and videos, looked AMAZING

It's not easy to write a case study on an @Actionjackson workshop, you need to be there to experience it! #NCW2013 #NCWML

CONCLUSION

Careers Week this year has been a spectacular success. Over 1,200 students have been involved in some form of careers, enterprise, motivation, further education or skills session and we are so pleased to see the impact we have had on those young people this year.

There's no time to stop! Careers Week 2014 planning is already underway and we already have confirmation from a number of our supporters in 2013, listed below, following feedback from our students. If you want to get involved in Careers Week next year, please do not hesitate to get in touch and find out more.

I look forward to working with you in the future.
